

Where healing begins™

The Complexity of Specialty Medication Today

Administrative & Financial Burden

Physicians and staff spend excessive time on prior authorizations and appeals. Without dedicated pharmacy advocacy, patients face high out-of-pocket costs and significant delays in starting life-altering therapy.

Fragmented Communication

A lack of synchronization between providers, pharmacies, and payers leads to poor coordination and treatment gaps. Providers are often left in the dark regarding a patient's actual adherence or shipment status.

Limited Specialty Expertise

Many retail pharmacies lack the clinical depth to handle complex biologics or disease-specific protocols. This results in insufficient guidance on side-effect management and a lack of specialized patient support.

Site-of-Care Limitations

Patients are often restricted to hospital-based settings, lacking the flexibility for more convenient options. This lack of choice can lead to missed doses and decreased patient satisfaction.

Unreliable Logistics & Fulfillment

Specialty medications require precise handling and temperature control. Standard delivery methods often fail to provide the "white-glove" service and reliable direct-to-patient shipment needed for complex therapies.

Insufficient Clinical Education

Patients often lack accessible, disease-specific counseling to empower them through their treatment journey. Without proper education on adherence strategies, long-term health outcomes are at risk

Althea's Comprehensive Care Model

Our Solutions to Address the Issues

Specialty Medication Access & Fulfillment

We manage the entire prescription lifecycle—from intake and coverage approval to dispensing. We ensure timely access to high-cost, complex therapies across neurology, immunology, rheumatology, and more.

Expert Home Infusion Nursing

We bridge the gap in care by offering all patients the opportunity for home infusion. Our network of specialty-trained nurses provides professional, one-on-one clinical care in the comfort of the patient's home.

We provide the ultimate convenience by facilitating therapy where the patient is most comfortable. We coordinate seamless medication delivery and clinical support to physician offices, established infusion sites or home infusions.

Our specialists manage the entire prior authorization and appeals process. We proactively identify financial assistance programs to minimize patient out-of-pocket costs and ensure therapy starts without delay.
